The Band 6 Trap: Why You Lose Marks

The "Shotgun Approach"

- Listing 5 different ideas quickly.
- Sentences are short and disconnected.
- Ideas are mentioned but never explained.

Examiner sees:
"Underdeveloped" &
"Lacks focus."

Unlocking Band 7+

Band 7 Task Response:
...presents, extends and supports main ideas...

Presents =

Make your point clearly.

Extends =

Explain how and why.

Supports =

Give a real-world example.

Quality > Quantity: 1 Deep Idea > 3 Shallow Ideas

The Paragraph Master Formula

 Point: What is your main claim?

 Explain: Clarify what that means.

 Why: What is the root cause?

 Result: What is the consequence?

 Example: Prove it with a specific case.

 Link: Tie it back to the essay prompt.

The 'Glow Up': Weak vs. Strong

Band 5

Some people think it is good to teach money at school. It helps children become independent. But parents should also teach it. Kids buy things. buy things. I think it depends on the child.

Band 8

Schools can offer a highly systematic and unbiased approach to financial education. Professional teachers ensure students receive accurate information on complex topics like budgeting. This is crucial because relying solely on parents leads to inconsistent learning. For example, classroom simulations allow students to practice financial decision-making safely. Thus, school-based learning ensures equal access to vital life skills.

Step-by-Step Build: Part 1 🧱

📌 Point: What is your main claim?

💡 Explain: Clarify what that means.

? Why: What is the root cause?

➡ Result: What is the consequence?

★ Example: Prove it with a specific case.

🔗 Link: Tie it back to the essay prompt.

📌 Point: Schools can offer a highly systematic and unbiased approach to financial education.

💡 Explain: Professional teachers ensure students receive accurate information on complex topics like budgeting or credit.

Takeaway: Don't just state the idea—clarify how it works.

Step-by-Step Build: Part 2 🧱

📌 Point: What is your main claim?

💡 Explain: Clarify what that means.

? Why: What is the root cause?

➡ Result: What is the consequence?

★ Example: Prove it with a specific case.

🔗 Link: Tie it back to the essay prompt.

Why: This is crucial because parents' financial knowledge varies greatly, and some lack confidence in modern finance.

Result: As a result, relying solely on parents may lead to inconsistent or incomplete learning.

Takeaway: Dig deeper. Why is the point true, and what happens because of it?

The Cause-Effect Chain

[Cause: Parents' knowledge varies]

(Consequently / This leads to)

[Effect 1: Inconsistent teaching at home]

(As a result / Therefore)

[Effect 2: Children lack vital life skills]

 Pro-Tip: Don't just state what happens—explain why it happens and use linking words to connect the chain!

Step-by-Step Build: Part 3

 Point: What is your main claim?

 Explain: Clarify what that means.

 Why: What is the root cause?

 Result: What is the consequence?

 Example: Prove it with a specific case.

 Link: Tie it back to the essay prompt.

 Example: For example, classroom activities—such as planning a savings goal—allow students to practice decision-making in a safe environment.

 Link: Thus, teaching money management in school ensures equal access for all students, regardless of background.

Takeaway: Examples must be specific. The Link ties it firmly back to the prompt!

Activity 1: Pair Brainstorming

5 Mins

“Others think this is the responsibility of parents.”

Your Task:

Partner up and brainstorm ideas for the opposing view. Find:

- ☐ 1. One clear Point (Why are parents better at this?)
- ☐ 2. One reason Why
-  ☐ 3. One specific Example (What real-life thing can parents teach?)

Activity 2: Draft Your Paragraph

 10 Minutes

Task: Write a fully developed body paragraph arguing that parents should teach money management.

Use the Master Formula:

 Point: _____

 Explain: _____

 Why /  Result: _____

 Example: _____

 Link: _____

Activity 3: Peer Checker Checklist

Task: Swap your paragraph with your partner. Act like the Examiner!

- ☐ A clear, single main Point?
- ☐ An Explanation of that point?
- ☐ A logical Cause or Effect (using words like 'As a result')?
- ☐ A highly specific Example?
- ☐ At least ONE piece of Academic Vocabulary?
- ☐ At least ONE pieces of Academic Vocabulary?

The Final Challenge

Prompt: "...Give your own opinion."

15:00

Task: Write your final body paragraph (Your Opinion) under exam conditions.

- Goal: 1 fully developed paragraph.
- Rule: You MUST use the Point → Explain → Why → Result → Example → Link formula.
- Time: 15 Minutes. Good luck!
